Now, Messrs. Editors, I come to look a little at the spirit of an anti-repudiator. It is easy to see the fire that burns in this short communication. He is anxiously awaiting for the Courts to be opened, and then, notwithstanding he promised while the war was going on that the last dollar must be sacrificed, he is ready to pounce down on the poor debtor who did all that he could to avert this war and demand the last copper. This anti-repudiator is a true representative man of a class of men left in our State who will, if not prevented by authority, utterly break down a still more numerous and worthy class of citizens, and turn them out as fugitives in the world.

impair private contracts.

In conclusion I will remark that I have not been an idle spectator of men and things during the war. I have seen the fierce contest between the war and the anti-war parties, the one contending that the very best interest of the country was to be promoted by the war, the other equally confident that in the end of the war we were to be a ruined people. I have seen the war man collar the Union man and punish him, and I know something of the gall and the wormwood that still lurks in the bosoms of these men. But, Messrs. Editors, when you come to see nearly half the citizens of North-Carolina turned out of doors with their wives and their children, and many of them now passed labor, you will see a state of things worse to be dreaded than the war itself. I pray God that something may be done to avert this dire calamity.

RALEIGH, N. C., May 22, 1866. To the Editors of the Standard : GENTLEMEN :- Having seen my name in the Standard of this morning, in regard to a report from the Freedmen's Court, presided over by Capt. Almy, commanding Sub. Dist. of Raleigh, I take the liberty of addressing you a few lines in regard to the case, so as to place the matter in its proper light before the public. Seven months ago I hired this boy, Scott Williamson, when he was without clothes or a permanent place, he being temporarily employed by Capt. McIver as his servant. I hired him at ten dollars per month the first two months, and as soon as he got to understand how to make himself useful about a Restaurant I raised his pay to fifteen dollars per month. Well, sirs, on the third of this month a certain man induced the boy away by offering five dollars per month more than I was giving, and this same fellow goes before Capt. Almy and swears the boy's services were worth twenty-five dollars per month to me, all the time he had been in my employ, but that he was only worth twenty dollars per month to him after learning his business while in my employ, and as I am writing this I am informed that he is going to discharge the boy even at that salary. brought the action against the boy, having overpaid him some twenty or thirty dollars, and when the case was brought on I was out of town on business, but requested one of the clerks of the Bureau to request Capt. Almy to postpone the case until I returned. The clerk forgot to notify Capt. Almy, and so when the case came up, there was but one side to it, and Capt. Almy had to let the case go by default against me; but when the case comes up again there will be two sides to it. I can assure you, Messrs. Editors, by by inserting these few lines you will oblige, Your most ob't serv't,

T. F. LEE.

He has signified his intention to have all the negro churches rebuilt in better style, and will see that the city foots the bill of damages committed by the late mob. He advertises for negro carpenters, masons and laborers to do the work. The Post says a number of gentlemen, known as negro leaders, have received anony

Another says that we common folks will be enabled to see something more of fashionable society than heretofore. A friend writes us as follows, under data

"Our County Court has recently levied and ordered the collection of double the rates of taxation upon all the usual subjects of revenue, taxed by the State, on the ground that such a heavy assessment was indispensably necessary to meet the wants and needs of the County. Much the largest portion of our County debt was incurred in aid of the rebellion in the support of volunteer companies, whilst being formed and organized, and in the support of the families of those who entered the Confederate service. Now I had supposed that the United States government had required the non-payment of all such debts, to which our Convention had assented. The authority for such heavy assessments is derived from an act of the Legislature of 1862, in defiance of the fact, that all such laws have been declared null and void .-Please reply to the following questions or lay them before competent authority for decis-ion, and publish for the information of the public in your valuable paper, both the question and the answers to them:

1st. Has the County Court the right now to base its action upon any law passed by the Legislature during the war? Have not all such laws been declared null and void? 2d. Has the County Court now the right to raise means by onerons taxation to pay debts incurred directly or indirectly in aid of the rebellion? Have not all such debts been debarred payment by the requirements of the United States government? Your immediate attention to these enquiries is most respectfully requested."

The State Convention, at its session in Ocober last, declared the act of secession by this State null and void. Every thing done under that act in aid of the rebellion, is also either House, cannot that House say to null and void. The foregoing would seem to be a sufficient answer to our correspondent. There is no authority, in or under this State, to tax the people to pay debts contracted, directly or indirectly, in aid of the rebellion. Taxes levied for such a purpose are unconstitutional, and null and void. During the session of the Convention referred to the following correspondence took place between the President and Provisional Governor:

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 18, 1865. W. W. Holden, Provisional Governor, Raleigh, N. C.

Every dollar of the debt created to aid the peace, prosperity, and happiness of our rebellion against the United States should be repudiated finally and forever. The great mass of the people should not be taxed to pay a debt to aid in carrying on a rebellion which they in fact, if left to themselves, were opposed to. Let those who have given their means for the obligations of the State look to that power they tried to establish in violation of law, constitution, and will of the people. They must meet their fate. It is heir misfortune, and cannot be recognized by the people of any State professing themselves loyal to the government of the United States and in the Union. I repeat that the the Convention to adjourn sine die, on the loyal people of North-Carolina should be expretext that there is nothing for it to do !- onerated from the payment of every dollar of indebtedness created to aid in carrying on the rebellion. I trust and hope that the people of North-Carolina will wash their ha of everything that partakes in the slightest its members; but we warn them in the most degree of the rebellion, which has been so reearnest terms to beware of Executive influ- cently crushed by the strong arm of the government in carrying out the obligations imposed by the Constitution of the Union.

And on the trates and town officers until the Legislature 27th of October, the following correspondence took place between the President and the Provisional Governor of Georgia: [Telegram.-Received 9 a. m., 28th.] MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Oct. 27, 1865.

His Excellency Andrew Johnson, President of the United States : We need some aid to repeal the war debt. Send me word on the subject. What should J. JOHNSON,

Provisional Governor of Georgia. [Telegram.] EXECUTIVE OFFICE,

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28, 1865. James Johnson, Provisional Governor,

Milledgeville, Ga.:

Your dispatch has been received. The people of Georgia should not hesitate one single moment in repudiating every single dollar of debt created for the purpose of aiding the rebellion against the Government of the United States. It will not do to levy that are loyal and in the Union, to pay a debt that was created to aid in an effort to take them out, and thereby subvert the Constitution of the United States. I do not believe the great mass of the people of the State of Georgia, when left uninfluenced, will ever submit to the payment of a debt which was the main cause of bringing on results of the rebellion, though it may seem contracted for the purpose of dissolving the Union of the States can or ever will be paid by taxes levied on the people for such pur-pose. ANDREW JOHNSON, President of the United States.

On the 7th November the Georgia Convention repudiated the rebel debt by a vote of 133 to 117.

The determination of the President from the outset was that not one cent of the rebel debt should be paid. The last inst u tions he gave to the writer of this, as he was about leaving Washington in May last, were in these words: "Go home and see to it that slavery is abolished, and that not one cent of the rebel debt is paid." . The policy of the President in this respect was uniform. Every State was required to ignore this debt, and there is no shadow of hope that any State that refuses to ignore it can be restored to the Union. Much censure was visited on the Provisional Governor of North-Carolina on account of the repudiation of the rebel debt; but a calm and just review of the facts as they exist, will show that this censure was not deserved. That officer, like the other Provisional Governors, simply performed his duty under the orders of the President.

It is a bad sign that any County, thus early, while the Convention that passed the above Ordinance is still in being, should attempt to tax the people to pay this debt .-We warn politicians who want to pay this debt, and holders of bonds who are looking to their own particular benefit in this matter, that the people will resist any attempt to collect taxes to pay this debt.

GRAPE GROWING .- North-Carolina is peculiarly the home of the vine; the best grapes cultivated in America are natives of this State. The Catareba, Laspeyres, Warrens, Pamlicos, Skoupernongs and Waccamaws, etc., are all indigenous to her soil. The latitude is known to be best adapted to the grape in its natural condition. The soil that Vine-culture simply follows, and guides by be placed experience, the laws of nature. Our people should be assured that by no other branch of Agriculture, can on small tracks of land be made more highly remunerative. In foreign exchanges we noticed the other day that a vineyard at Gervy, in France, sold at public auction, at the enormous rates of five thousand dollars an acre. There is no valid reason, either founded on soil or climate, that such prices may not, in a few years be obtaingrowing, to require the requisite skill in the preparation of their soil, and the requisite knowledge in trimming and working the vineyard.

SUSPENSION OF THE REPUBLIC.-The Republic will be suspended after the issue of today. Whether the suspension will be permanent, depends upon circumstances. This result has become inevitable from the want of sufficiently paying patronage, and the impossibility of collecting debts, caused by the general impoverishment of the people. If we had been able to extend credit to the styles of cases. large number of people in the interior, who desired to become subscribers, but were unable to make payment till the end of the year, we should have had a circulation that would have warranted the continuance of this journal. But it was out of our power to do this, and the discontinuance is imposed upon us

We have labored in good faith for the restoration of Union and Peace; we have sought to promote sentiments of good will and fraternity towards all sections; we have endeavored to show that the best interests of Virginia are involved in the loyal performance, both in spirit and letter, of those obligations to the general government which her people have assumed. Of all this we have nothing to retract, and our last counsel to our fellow-citizens, dictated by the most sincere, and, as we think, enlightened aspirations for their welfare, is the counsel we have always given, to demonstrate by their acts and words their fidelity to the Union, and thereby strengthen the hands of the President who is nobly struggling to restore these States to their old relations to the government, and to save the heritage of constitutional liberty from confusion and shame. With these words we bid the public-

Farewell.—Republic. There are many good Union papers in West Virginia, but the Richmond Republic, whose suspension is announced above, was the only out-spoken, independent, loyal Union paper in old Virginia. We regret the suspension of the Republic. It shows that what little love there was for the Union in that State is dying out.

The Standard is now the only out-and out, independent, loyal Union newspaper in the Atlantic Southern States, so far as we know. We shall maintain our position unflinchingly. We do not intend in any event to abanwell as ours, is at stake.

MEETING OF THE MEMBERS OF THE BAR .-At a meeting of the bar of Wake County, held May 22, in the court house in Raleigh, on motion of Q. Busbee, Esq., Ex. Gov. Chas. Manly was called to the chair, and W. K. Barham, Esq., requested to act as Secretary. The meeting being fully organized, the following resolutions, offered by K. P. Battle Esq., were adopted:

COTTON GINS,

MANUFACTURED BY W. G. CLEMONS, BROWN & CO., Columbus, Ga

E HAVE REVIVED THE MANUFAC-

VV TURE of Cotton Gins in this City, and will be prepared to fill orders by 1st June next. As we shall not be, as heretofore, represented by traveling agents, parties wishing our Gins will confer a favor by sending in their orders at an early day. As owing to the demand, we shall be unable to keep a stock in the hands of our local agents, as it was our practice before the war. All business transactions being now reduced to cash, Our Gins are too well known to require any special notice or commendation; we believe they are unrivalled in the chief points of excellence which go to make up a superior machine, namely: Speed, light draught and good sample. Our DOUBLE CYLINDER GINS will be found superior to the single cylinder, when parties have steam or good water power, to give them the necessary speed. In all cases when this can be done, we recommend them in preference to the single cylinder. It, however, indifferent or insufficient power is used, they will not do as well as the single Gin.

Messrs. DeROSSET & CO., Wilmington, N. C. are our general agents for the State of North-
